"Mr. Cheap of Piece" was the way a letter received by the Chief of Police of this city was addressed when it was opened this morning. The contents of the missive were about as vague as the correctness of the spelling. However, it was gathered that the writer was asking information concerning Harry Fox, who is supposed to be living on North Fourth street. The letter came from Utah.

The Y. M. C. A. is to conduct a cafeteria at the state fairgrounds this season. It will be under the supervision of Ed. Tallman, Jr., who says that he expects to feed the largest number of people that has ever been fed at the state fair. Because petty thieves have been committing acts of vandalism about the state house, Secretary of State Olcott has offered a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of the parties who filched the lamps and light globes from in front of the supreme court building last night. Light globes have been disappearing for some time past and one night last week a resident of this city attempted to carry away a section of garden hose that was attached to a hydrant on the state house lawn. A night watchman saw the man, who had coiled the hose up and was making away with it under his arm, and requested him to drop it. The hose was dropped and the man took to his heels.

Five tarantulas, venomous spiders, have been found recently by Alfred Burg of the Schmaltzried grocery on Church and Marion streets in bunches of bananas. Yesterday he imprisoned one in a trap glass and is holding it for investigation. It is probably of the large hairy species found in Texas and adjacent countries, which grows to be about two inches in size. The true tarantula is a large European wolf spider whose bite is supposed to cause tarantism, or an uncontrollable desire to dance, to be cured only by protracted dancing to appropriate music. In Australia, the tarantula is a harmless spider.

In response to the request of the promotion department of the Salem Commercial club concerning cheap unimproved lands of from $30 to $50 per acre for letting for the benefit of probable immigrants, the Oregon State immigration commission has sent a letter to George Rodgers of the board of governors, assuring hearty support in this move. The promotion department here will file a list of unimproved cheap lands with the immigration commission at their office in Portland. This response is only an instance of the favorable manner in which this movement is received.

D. H. Mosher, the tailor, has returned, lanned and happy, from a week's vacation in Tillamook county, where he had all the trout he could eat and all kinds of fun catching them. He was accompanied by Mrs. Mosher and the children, and the party included W. M. Stone, an attorney of Oregon City; Mrs. Stone, and her sister, Miss Johns, and Louis Krepla, of Salem. They visited Tillamook city, Pacific City and various points of interest along the coast.

The Capital Journal tenders its apologies to many of its readers who did not get their copy of the Journal last night. This was caused by a change in the printing arrangements temporarily made in which the old press was called into use. Under average conditions this would have made no difference, but as the old press had not been used since moving it developed some traits it was never suspected of having, and refused to come through in spite of several ultimatum delivered to it, some of them in Spanish. CARROLL ON TRIAL FOR THIRD TIME

Man Accused of Shooting John Zollar, City Marshal of Gervais, Faces the Jury Again Today.

The jury and the court dignitaries in the Carroll case, which is on trial for the third time, went to Gervais today to gain some first-hand knowledge of the location of the historic spots in connection with the shooting of Marshal John Zollar. The court was adjourned at 1:30 to take the Southern Pacific train for the city of Gervais, and court will be resumed at 1:30 when they return. It is likely that a night session will be held so that all of the evidence and examination of witnesses may be completed this evening.

The forenoon was taken up with the examination of witnesses for the state, which will probably rest at about 6 o'clock. Most of the evidence taken today has been told in former trials and the testimony was largely a rehearsal. No new witnesses were introduced by the state. The forenoon was taken up with the identification of Roy Carroll as one of the men seen running from the scene of the shooting escape in which Mr. Zollar received his death wound. The clothes worn by Carroll at that time were offered in evidence as a means of identification. The action on the men and direction of their flight were recounted. The incidents about the death of Mr. Zollar and his dying declaration were told again.

Zollar's Mind Was Clear.
Juror Calvin asked the question, "What was the mental condition of Mr. Zollar at the time he signed this dying statement?"

Dr. Hickman, who attended the wounded man some time after the accident, was recalled to the stand and answered that during all of the time that he attended Mr. Zollar the marshal's mind was clear and he was entirely rational. There was no reason from the way the bullet lay in the neck of the wounded man why his mental condition should be anything but normal. Dr. Hickman said, however, that he was not present when the dying declaration was signed. Mr. Helback, on the stand, testified that the marshal's mind was clear when he signed the statement.

Sheriff Each was the last witness on the stand before the court adjourned to go to Gervais. The sheriff testified as to the arrest of Carroll when he appeared at the Salem police station asking for medical aid for a bullet wound in his shoulder. He told of the confession of Carroll that he was present at the shooting at Gervais. Carroll first denied that he received the bullet wound at Gervais, saying that he was shot in Portland. When the officers doubted his story and appealed to him on behalf of his parents, he said that Carroll said:

Carroll Told the Story.
"Well, why should I not tell the whole thing. I am not afraid of the truth." Then he said that Carroll related the entire story of the shooting substantially as he has told it at the two former trials.

The jury of 12 men for this case was selected after an examination of only 15 men. Not one of the jurors expressed himself as being opposed to capital punishment upon being questioned by the state's attorney.

The following jurors were selected and sworn this morning: Louis Weber, druggist, Aurora; Roy Burton, Salem, accountant; George H. Bell, Sublimity, merchant; A. C. Libby, Jefferson, farmer; C. W. Buckner, Salem, retired; Wesley Desart, Howell, farmer; D. S. Livezey, Woodburn, lumberman; James Colvin, Aumsville, farmer; C. W. Gillette, Woodburn, clerk; Fred L. Scott, Liberty, farmer; O. S. Hattberg, South Silveston, farmer; George W. Brown, Brooks, farmer.

ALASKA SCHOOL MAN PAYS VISIT TO SALEM

Tells of the Problems Education of the Indians Brings Up—White Man's Example Worst Feature.

W. G. Beattie, superintendent of schools of the district of South Eastern Alaska, made a short visit at the office of State Superintendent Churchill this morning on his way back to Portland from a trip to Eugene. Mr. Beattie is superintendent of the Indian schools of this district and is under the United States federal bureau of education. He directs the educational destinies of some 3000 Indians of whom 1,200 are enrolled in the Indian schools. Mr. Beattie says that his work is largely pioneering in an educational line and that his problems include sanitation, health and the general welfare of his charges and that the school work is largely confined to the three "R's."

He has charge of the schools in the Indian villages and there are few Indian boarding schools like Chemawa in that territory. Each Indian village has its Indian school. There are 18 permanent Indian winter villages and in each is the village school house for the use of the pupils. There is practically no age limit, however, and he says that it is a common sight to see mothers and fathers in the same schools with their children.

The teachers are nearly all white as the Indians have not advanced far enough in educational lines to become teachers as they do in United States. "The real problem, however," said Mr. Beattie, "is not the problem of the Indian but the problem of the white man. The Indians are an imitative race and the badly men of the white race in that country through ignorance and lack of necessity scorn the ideas of ventilation and sanitation in a large measure. It is hard to civilize Indians when they see their less civilized white brothers disregarding the laws of the better ways of living."

Mr. Beattie has been in Alaska for several years in various educational capacities. He is a graduate of the University of Oregon, finishing in that institution in 1901.

JOHN H. SIMPSON OF ALBANY IS DEAD

Albany, Ore., July 30.—John H. Simpson, of Albany, formerly of Corvallis, dropped dead last night at Detroit, on the extension of the Corvallis & Eastern. Mr. Simpson and family and Mr. Bain, president of the Albany State bank, and his family, were on an outing at Detroit.

The first news of Mr. Simpson's death was received tonight at 11:20 o'clock in a telegram sent by Mr. Bain, but the message did not convey the immediate cause of his death. It is presumed to have been heart failure.

Mr. Simpson was a member of the Albany city council and was also prominent in Masonic circles. He resided in Corvallis until eight years ago, when he came to Albany.

He is a brother of Mrs. Woodcock, the wife of the president of the First National bank of Corvallis.

AUSTRIANS IN SERBIA'S CAPITAL.
London, July 30.—That Austrian soldiers had occupied Belgrade, Serbia's capital, was announced in a news agency dispatch received here from Vienna today. The occupation occurred Wednesday, according to the dispatch, the Austrians crossing the river on pontoons, on account of the previous destruction of the Belgrade-Semlin bridge by Serbian soldiers. It was believed the Serbians did not resist the enemy's invasion of their capital.
